

Strasbourg, February 27, 2024

After 10 years as Chairman, Nicolas Théry will step down in April 2024. As his successor, he is proposing the appointment of Daniel Baal, Chief Executive Officer, with whom he has worked side by side since 2017

This changeover is taking place at an opportune time: Crédit Mutuel Alliance Fédérale reported record results, confirming the solidity and relevance of its mutualist model, and has launched its 2024-2027 strategic plan, Togetherness, Performance, Solidarity, which will amplify this momentum.

Nicolas Théry will therefore propose to the Chambre syndicale (parliament of the Crédit Mutuel Centre Est Europe federation), the Board of Directors of Caisse Fédérale de Crédit Mutuel (parent entity of Crédit Mutuel Alliance Fédérale) and the General Shareholders' Meeting of Confédération Nationale du Crédit Mutuel, at its meeting on April 4 and 5, the appointment of Daniel Baal as Chairman of the Centre Est Europe federation, Crédit Mutuel Alliance Fédérale and the Confédération Nationale.

Nicolas Théry, Chairman of Crédit Mutuel Alliance Fédérale since 2014 and of Confédération Nationale du Crédit Mutuel since 2016, and Daniel Baal, Chief Executive Officer since 2017, have profoundly transformed the mutual insurance group. With the support of the elected members, the employees and the executive management team, they accelerated the development of Crédit Mutuel Alliance Fédérale, now ranked the ninth largest bank in the eurozone. Operational efficiency and financial solidity were strengthened, with net income reaching €4.1 billion in 2023 (third strongest financial performance among French banks) and shareholders' equity of €62.4 billion (up €27.5 billion since 2014). These results confirm Crédit Mutuel's position as the strongest banking group in Europe with a CET1 ratio of 18.5%.

This efficiency comes from the successful combination of employee commitment and the group's technological edge, via Euro-Information. This is evidenced in particular by the pioneering choices made in artificial intelligence with the development of cognitive solutions for advisors and customers from 2017 and use cases resulting from quantum technology that will be rolled out in the coming years. Today, more than 25,000 advisors from the Crédit Mutuel and CIC networks use these solutions every day to serve more than 14 million customers and members.

These exceptional results were made possible thanks to the decentralized model, the pooling of support functions, the leeway given to the Crédit Mutuel and CIC networks, the use of formidable tools for capturing customers and developing the group, and the dynamism of the business subsidiaries, which put into action the group's strategy of expertise and diversification in banking, insurance and intangible services.

Together, Nicolas Théry and Daniel Baal strengthened Crédit Mutuel's position as a key banking and insurance player in France, by supporting the projects of all the group's members and customers, individuals and businesses alike, and by growing the group in Europe in particular with support from the Targobank Germany and Cofidis Group subsidiaries. As a result, the balance sheet reached €913 billion in 2023 (+68% vs. 2014).

The mutualist model has been revitalized and shown its relevance at a time of intensifying social, societal and environmental crises. The adoption of the status of a mission-driven company in 2021 was a first for the bank, and it was followed by the creation of the pioneering Societal Dividend in 2023, to which more than one billion euros was committed in the space of two years to better share value through disruptive investments, sponsorship initiatives and solidarity-based commercial offers. Crédit Mutuel took action in particular during the Covid-19 epidemic to support self-employed professionals and companies (the mutual relief premium, massive repayment deferrals, state-guaranteed loans) and students (Aide Mutualiste support measures). The group also removed the health questionnaire previously required for home loans, a revolutionary banking and insurance measure to bring an end to discrimination against patients and former patients, and more recently waived bank inheritance fees for middle class and low-income households.

Another highlight of the tenures of Nicolas Théry and Daniel Baal was a strengthening of the social contract; the group continuously signed collective agreements on quality of life in the workplace and gender equality, as well as on collective bonuses (incentive, profit-sharing and value-sharing bonuses) and general pay increases (collective increases of more than 8.6% over the last two years). Crédit Mutuel Alliance Fédérale has thus confirmed its position as an employer of choice among large companies, making social dialog an essential counterpart of collective success.

Lastly, the Crédit Mutuel group brought to an end a ten-year-old internal conflict with the signature on May 3, 2023 of a political memorandum of understanding for a unified and plural Crédit Mutuel, leading to a statutory reform of the Confédération Nationale du Crédit Mutuel, under the aegis of chairmen Nicolas Théry and Julien Carmona and the 19 federations that make up the group. United around the Confédération Nationale, the Crédit Mutuel group is committed to providing the best of service to its members and customers and to speeding up its development.

At the proposal of Daniel Baal, the duties of Chief Executive Officer of Caisse Fédérale de Crédit Mutuel, the parent entity of Crédit Mutuel Alliance Fédérale, are to be entrusted to Eric Petitgand, currently Deputy Chief Executive Officer. After ten years as Chairman, Nicolas Théry will devote himself fully to the challenges of the ecological, climate and solidarity transformation, as advisor to the newly appointed Chairman and as Chairman of the Crédit Mutuel Alliance Fédérale foundations.

"Nicolas Théry has led and steered a tremendous process of change and a historic turning point for our group. I would like to thank him sincerely. I am very proud to have worked side by side with him over the last seven years, collaborating effectively and complementing each other. I am aware of the challenge that lies ahead in taking up this role, to speed up our transformation and development in accordance with our mutualist values. I know I can count on all of our directors and all our teams. I wish to contribute to the efficient and harmonious operation of the Crédit Mutuel Group as part of the Confédération Nationale du Crédit Mutuel, the central body that must play its role fully in serving all the federations," says Daniel Baal.
