KONSOLIDATOR®

Konsolidator releases an AI-powered mapping module.

Today, Konsolidator announces the release of its new mapping module, which is powered by OpenAI. With AI auto-map, Konsolidator makes it easier for customers to map local accounts to group accounts which is an important and time-consuming task during onboarding. The feature cuts significant time away from the customers' workload during onboarding and brings Konsolidator closer to a complete self-onboarding process.

Making the customers able to self-onboard is still a key focus area for Konsolidator. With this release of an AI-powered mapping module, the company has now taken a significant step in solidifying the road toward a complete self-onboarding process.

Faster onboarding, fewer resources.

An essential part of Konsolidator's "Unfolding the potential" strategy is increasing focus on free trial and integrating with existing cloud ERP software. By utilizing emerging technologies like OpenAI, Konsolidator can create an automated self-onboarding process as part of their free trial that ensures constant relevance to a changing marketplace. The goal is to allow small and medium-sized groups to test Konsolidator as a free trial plug-and-play software, where mapping is a heavy part of the process when you build a new Consolidation process. Thereby, Konsolidator can onboard more customers faster with fewer resources.

CEO Claus Finderup Grove comments: "We are excited about our first try at utilizing OpenAI and the tremendous value it brings to our customers. Our mission – to make CFOs and Auditors better - is always our main focus. And by adapting and embracing OpenAI, we can generate even more value for our customers in the onboarding process, but soon also in the reconciliation process, and the preparation of the budget and forecast."
