Atos named Official Technology Partner for the Invictus Games 2025

The company will provide cutting-edge Timing, Results and Scoring Solutions in Vancouver and Whistler, Canada

Paris, France – November 27, 2024 – Atos, a global leader in digital transformation, today announces it has been selected as the Official Technology Partner of the Invictus Games Vancouver Whistler 2025 presented by ATCO and Boeing, to be held from February 8-16 in Vancouver and Whistler, Canada. Atos' extensive experience in the sports industry, paired with its leadership in cutting-edge technology within the global sports ecosystem, will help take the Invictus Games Vancouver Whistler 2025 to the next level of performance and provide competitors and stakeholders with an exceptional experience. As part of this partnership, Atos will provide all the fundamental projects and operation technology services related to critical data, on- and off-site, equipment such as laptops and screens, and IT systems management, including:

- On-venue results systems (OVR) for all sports including up-to-date and accurate start lists, timing, scoring and results;
- Generation and integration of all data and real-time systems into the Invictus Games Vancouver Whistler 2025 and Invictus Games Foundation websites;
- Real-time Graphic integration during the operations for distribution on all channels, including TVs and broadcasters, in accordance with the Invictus Games Vancouver Whistler 2025 graphic guidelines and requirements.

The Invictus Games is an international adaptive multi-sport event founded by Prince Harry, The Duke of Sussex, for wounded, injured, and sick service members and Veterans. Launched in London in 2014, the Games aim to use the power of sport to inspire recovery, support rehabilitation, and generate a wider understanding and respect for those who serve their countries. Participants compete in sports such as wheelchair basketball, sitting volleyball, and indoor rowing, showcasing their resilience and determination.

The 2025 edition of the Invictus Games, set to take place in Vancouver and Whistler, Canada, will bring together up to 550 athletes from up to 25 countries. For the first time the event will feature six winter adaptive sports, including alpine skiing, alpine snowboarding, Nordic skiing, biathlon, skeleton and wheelchair curling, expanding the scope of competition and offering new challenges that inspire both competitors and audiences alike.

Adaptative sports come with a unique set of rules and categories based on competitors' mental and physical health, where Atos' experience and advanced sports technologies play a crucial role. These solutions significantly enhance the readiness and deployment capabilities, ensuring a seamless experience for athletes and organizers.

Nacho Moros, Head of Major Events, Atos, said: "We are thrilled and deeply honored to partner with the Invictus Games Vancouver Whistler-2025, providing world-class sports technologies to support these incredible competitors. It is a privilege for us to give back to those who have sacrificed so much in service to their countries and communities. Drawing on our unmatched experience, including the successful delivery of the Paralympic Games Paris 2024 as well as our partnership with Special Olympics International, we are confident that our contributions will help make this 2025 edition of the Invictus Games a tremendous success."

Invictus Games Vancouver Whistler 2025 CEO Scott Moore said "We are delighted to partner with Atos, a global leader in high-performance computing, as we prepare to bring the Invictus Games to Vancouver and Whistler. This collaboration is a game-changer, as it allows us to leverage innovative technology to enhance the experience for our competitors, their families, and our global audience. At the heart of the Invictus Games is the spirit of recovery and resilience, and with Atos' cutting-edge solutions we can ensure that every story of courage and strength is shared with the world in real time."
