

Excalibur Army Secures a Record Export Contract for Patriot Vehicles

CSG Group, through its subsidiary Excalibur Army, has secured contracts in Southeast Asia for the delivery of more than 100 Patriot armored vehicles in various configurations. The total value of these contracts exceeds USD 300 million. Deliveries are scheduled to be completed within a three-year timeframe.

The order includes a wide range of Patriot platform variants designed for modern land forces, from mortar carrier vehicles and command vehicles to armored personnel carriers, wheeled infantry fighting vehicles, and armored medical evacuation versions.

“Within the CSG Group, Excalibur Army specializes in the development and production of top-tier land systems, often based on Tatra chassis. The contract in Southeast Asia confirms the trust of our partners and builds on our successful track record of deliveries in this region, where we have previously exported, for example, bridging systems and rocket launchers,” said Vladimír Stulančák, CEO of Excalibur Army.

The Patriot armored vehicle is built on the outstanding off-road wheeled Tatra chassis, featuring the unique central backbone tube design with independent swinging half-axels, ensuring high mobility even in demanding conditions. This project represents the largest export order for the Patriot platform to date and confirms its versatility as well as its ability to be tailored to the customer's specific requirements.
