HIGHLIGHTS

BG Fund had a very strong month in November, bringing YTD returns to 9.55% (USD A estimate). BG's returns primarily came from a plethora of idiosyncratic events within the equity special situations, risk arbitrage and value catalyst strategies, along with strong performance from volatility. The past few weeks have seen a burst of M&A activity, which we expect to continue across European industries and geographies into 2021 and beyond.

The Euro Stoxx 50® Total Return returned 18.09% in November although the European equity market remains in negative territory for the year with the SX5T down -4.89% year to date. During the month credit markets tightened with iTraxx Crossover (S33) finishing the month at 265bps (tighter by 104bps or -28.2% down in one month), and volatility decreased as well with VStoxx ending the month at 22.9%, down -35.17% (from 35.3%) as sentiment improved.

Despite the continued spread of Covid, and many Western economies still in partial lockdown, with multiple promising Covid vaccines on the near horizon, equity markets are now looking through the crisis and anticipating a strong recovery in 2021. Markets continue to discount uncertainty around Brexit, however with the new US administration all-but confirmed and a global trade-friendly outlook, we anticipate a very positive tail-wind for European markets – something that hasn't been seen in many years.

Deal pipelines started to come alive over the summer and have significantly increased into year end. The COVID-19 pandemic and potential vaccines have brought a new dynamic to the economic equation. Corporates are having to evolve quickly, and address vulnerabilities, gaps and opportunities that have been exposed. This will continue to accelerate the need for M&A, asset disposal and spin offs. With equity, debt and hybrid financing readily available, low interest rates and private equity firms with significant dry powder corporate activity will remain heightened for the next several years. We expect this backdrop to provide a very favourable environment for BG Fund.
