ESG Management and Reporting Software

Corporate Performance & ESG (CP & ESG) division drives up standards of corporate responsibility and sustainability across multiple sectors

AMSTERDAM - July 28, 2023 - Wolters Kluwer, a global leader in professional information, software solutions, and services, has been recognized by Gartner as a Representative Vendor in its newly published Market Guide for ESG Management and Reporting Software. The company's Corporate Performance and ESG (CP & ESG) division helps empower companies across multiple sectors to track and monitor key ESG metrics.

Gartner notes that Chief Information Officers (CIOs) interested in adopting technologies and processes to measure and manage ESG should "define ESG management and reporting requirements by reviewing enterprise goals, material issues, regulatory and reporting requirements, plus stakeholder expectations." The analyst firm adds that CIOs should also "build the business case for investing in ESG management and reporting by focusing on its quantitative and qualitative benefits. Quantitative benefits include improved productivity and efficiency collecting ESG data and lower external assurance and reporting costs. Qualitative benefits include improved operational and strategic sustainability decision making through timely and granular data and analytics."
