

APRIL: The European Commission approves the transfer of Evolem's stake to CVC Fund VII

On 28 January 2019, APRIL, Evolem and CVC Capital Partners announced the signing of an agreement for the transfer of Evolem's equity stake (65.13% of APRIL's capital) to Andromeda Investissements, a holding company controlled by funds managed by CVC Capital Partners in which Evolem and APRIL's management will hold a minority stake.

In that context, APRIL and Andromeda Investissements sought the agreement of the European Commission under the simplified merger control procedure. The Commission agreed that APRIL could be acquired by Andromeda Investissements, considering that "the proposed transaction would not raise competition concerns as there is no overlap between the activities of the companies involved".

The transaction remains however subject to regulatory authorisations in France and abroad and is expected to take place during the second quarter of 2019.

As a reminder, the planned transfer would be made at a price of €22 per share and could be subject to two downward adjustments via:

- › the deduction of any dividend paid out or planned prior to the completion of the transfer of Evolem's equity stake¹,
- › the deduction of the cost incurred by APRIL (or its best estimate) at the date of transfer of the controlling block held by Evolem, subject to a 10 million euros deductible, in connection with the proposed tax reassessment from the French tax administration, following investigations on the territoriality of the reinsurance business conducted by Axeria Re, its subsidiary in Malta (see the APRIL press release dated 24 December 2018)².

In accordance with applicable regulations, if the deal is closed, Andromeda Investissements will file a simplified public tender offer for the remainder of APRIL's share capital at the same price as that paid to Evolem.

¹ i.e. as an example, a decrease of €0.27 per share, on the basis of a dividend equivalent to the dividend paid out in respect of the 2017 financial year.

² i.e. as an example, a decrease of €0.12 per share on the basis of the provision the company plans to record in its 2018 financial statements (see press release dated 24 December 2018).
